

Two-Factor Authentication: How it Works

HCAI's two-factor authentication process applies to users of the HCAI web application (www.hcai.ca) and is not applicable to users logging into a Practice Management Software (PMS).

A verification code is a numeric code that HCAI emails or texts to you when you sign in to HCAI. This login process is referred to as two-factor authentication – an additional layer of security.

Sign in to www.hcai.ca by entering your username and password.

The first time you sign in, HCAI will present you the option to select a delivery method for your verification code.

Do not exit the HCAI window while retrieving your code. If you exit HCAI, you will need to log in again and generate a new code.

A verification code is sent to the selected delivery method – either the email address or cell phone number associated with your user profile.

The verification code will be sent immediately.

Emailed verification codes will expire after 60 minutes and texted codes will expire after 10 minutes.

Enter your verification code

If the verification code is entered incorrectly, you can retry the code a limited number of times.

You can also request a new code or change your delivery method using the links on the page.

Users except User Administrators can opt to trust their device to reduce the frequency a code is required.

Important: If your email address is incorrect, ask your User Administrator to update the email associated with your account. You can review and edit your cell phone number on the "My Profile" tab after signing in.
